1. The first step is to identify the problem or goal. This involves understanding the current situation and what needs to be achieved. 2. Next, it's important to gather information and resources. This could involve research, consulting experts, or identifying potential obstacles. 3. Once you have a clear understanding of the problem and the resources available, you can begin to develop a plan. This plan should outline the steps you will take to achieve your goal. 4. After developing a plan, it's time to implement it. This involves putting the plan into action and monitoring progress. 5. Finally, it's important to evaluate the results. This involves assessing whether the goal has been achieved and what lessons can be learned from the process.

[illegible]

1. The first step in the process of the investigation is to identify the problem. This is done by the investigator who is responsible for the investigation. The investigator will then gather information about the problem and the people involved. This information will be used to determine the cause of the problem and to develop a plan to solve it.

WHITE PAPER ON THE

Report of the Committee on the Administration of the Federal Bureau of Investigation

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Committee on the Administration of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was organized on July 1, 1934, by the House of Representatives. Its purpose was to study the organization and administration of the FBI and to make recommendations for improvement. The Committee held numerous public hearings and received many suggestions from the public. It also conducted extensive research into the various problems facing the Bureau. The results of its study are set forth in this report.
